STOLEN JEWELRY FOUND IN YARD

Three Rings Belonging to Mrs. George Reichle Found in Neighbor's Yard after having been Missed for Many Months.

Three stolen rings, one a wedding ring, were found by Mrs. Harry Culp, Clinton and Mrs. George Reichle, of West High street, in the former's yard on Wednesday. The jewelry belonged to Mrs. Reichle and the rings it had been stolen last October and who had given up all hope of its ever being found.

On Wednesday morning Mrs. Geisinger, who lives next to the house which was, and in which occupied before moving to their present home, was working in her yard cleaning things up about her premises. She suddenly noticed an object shining brightly in the ground and upon further examination recognized it as one of Mrs. Reichle's rings. She kept on a little further and found another.

Word was sent to Mrs. Reichle of the find and she went to the house, correctly believing that the news of the good fortune would be hers. She found, however, that the rings were her own and in the evening sent back to the house that the third one, her wedding ring, might also be found. The relief search it, too, was found. One of the rings contained a large pearl and the other six emerald.

The three rings were missed by Mrs. Reichle from the dresser when before moving last October and no trace of them could be found since. It is the belief of the finder that the thief became fearful of capture or circumstances would soon after getting possession of the ill-gotten gains and placed them in the house into the Geisleman yard where they have lain for the past seven months before they were discovered.

Professors are numerous that the control of which will be the subject matter of the preliminary injunction granted by Judge Swope in Carlisle court this week.

The court held that the use of the defendant's heavy traction engine on the state macadam road to be unlawful on the parts of the road that were repaired by the commission under the injunction until final hearing. The court held that the use of the road is unlawful, but held that there was not evidence enough to show that the use was injurious.

The injunction case started some time ago when the commission let a contract to Hunter & Bell to repair the road, using it for the purpose of hauling the material used in the repairing.

The trips over the road were each every few weeks, and the heavy engine succeeds to about fourteen tons carried on four or five narrow tired wagons.

TO MAKE AN ASPARAGUS BED

Directions by a Successful Virginia Grower of the Vegetable.

The first and most important factor in a good permanent asparagus bed is having a piece of good soil, naturally well drained and loamy in the house. It should be the best spot in the garden.

Make your soil as rich as you can with thoroughly rotted manure, and on our three-year-old plants set the crown is just below the surface. Have the roots of each plant well spread out and cover lightly with the loose dirst you have dug. Do not expect to see any results you can plant the first year. Let the plants get transplanted or whipped to the ground by the wind. Cut off the tops in the fall and burn them. Then apply a dressing of Farmers' Friend. And don't call it "trash"—that's what the term "garden bed" implies—but, in a word, "soil." Then in the spring, as soon as frost organic matter, in a dry and loamy place and have the roots cut fine and wet.

Keep the soil about three-and-one-half inches from the surface of the ground. Do not let it. Enough space must be left between the rows to allow the cultivator to run through the rows. Keep the soil mellow and free from weeds.

Do not cut the asparagus the next year if you are in a hurry, but let it grow

AMERICANS SHOT AS INSURGENTS

Four Summarily Put to Death by Mexicans.

REPUBLIC FACES A CRISIS

Linotaur Says Diaz Must Keep Up Fight or Resign—Reforms Will Be Given to People.

San Antonio, Texas, March 24.—Jules Hamilton Dipnowitz, well known here as "Hans" Dipnowitz, and three other Americans have met the death under orders of a Mexican court-martial, for participation in the insurrection, according to a dispatch received by members of the Dipnowitz family.

The news came in a dispatch to Fred Dipnowitz, a cousin of the executed men, but gave him no particulars, aside from the allegation that the executions were the result of a drumhead court-martial.

Jules Dipnowitz was thirty years old, and was engaged in the cattle and mining business in the state of Chihuahua.

H. M. Nurss, a mining man with interests in northern Mexico, arrived in San Antonio. Nurss declared that the shooting of the mines had thrown many Americans out of work, and that some from 100 to 200 were on their way of living, were now with the insurrectos.

In addition, Nurss said, there were probably fifty Americans associated with the insurrectos, but the majority were mining men out of work.

DIAZ MUST KEEP UP FIGHT

Linotaur Admits Mexican Situation is Serious.

Mexico City, March 24.—Admitting that Mexico's situation is more serious than he had believed, Francisco Madero Linotaur, head of the administration has no definite plans for the solution of the problems confronting the government.

It has no alternative but to continue the military programme on which it has entered, say the leaders, declaring the government's express-ed attitude reforms will be considered only after the wounds caused by the present disorder have been healed.

Linotaur Madero declared the statement of these reforms is that relative to the reduction of the tariff laws.

There is no disposition on the government's part to abandon the social reforms which might be demanded by a reasonable public, he says. However, the administration does not propose to be stampeded into the hasty approval of measures.

In a word, the administration recognizes the necessity of the consolidated public—one represented by the intellectual but non-combatant element on the other by the followers of Madero. For the latter the administration has no terms other than those formulated at the war department.

Such is the program announced by Linotaur as the result of conferences with President Diaz and other members of the cabinet.

One of the first acts of congress, which will convene on April 1, will be the consideration of a new appropriation for the army, which will be asked to increase the number of the military force, Senor Linotaur did not say.

It has already been definitely stated that Mexico's war resources scarcely have been touched, and that an army of 50,000 men could be put in the field if necessary.

Touching on the reform relative to the division of property in the state, the latter said the method of acquiring these properties had been somewhat unfair. He reaffirmed his Paris statement that such a division of property would be desirable.

Any new situation the world, is the opinion of the minister, here to be the solution of any serious complication and would tend to be so framed as to avoid any international issue. It is declared here would not be intended to any concessions to the rebels on the basic feature of their demands, according to statements made repeatedly by Madero and his associates.

FIRED ON U. S. SOLDIERS?

It Is Said Mexican Federal Troops Fired on Texans.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 24.—Reasoning that leaders of the Democratic and Keystone parties confer for the purpose of finding a common ground on which they may get together, Colonel W. H. Guffey, Democratic national committeeman, gave out the following statement:

"Now that the majority and minority reports of the Lincoln-Penrose organization committee have been filed, and the House, the time has arrived when the situation should be considered from a non-biased and impartial standpoint.

"Democrats are looking to an anti-Penrose majority (including the minority and organization) members, to speedily and unanimously elect a senator and recommend the joint meeting of representative members and their executive committees of both parties to confer with each other in order to fully discuss and consider the tentative proposition that, for the time being, the Democratic and the Keystone state committee to jointly combine and agree upon a candidate for governor of the state.

"And to put that all there is to this years' campaign? Then take care of your organization and get ready for that will take care of itself.

"The Democrats of the counties mentioned that screened the so-called reorganization committee in the primaries are by this time, perhaps, so well disappointed that they will be ready to encourage some movement that has for its object the defeat of the Penrose party on broad and manly lines."

HANOVER YOUNG MAN SUICIDES

Young Man Dies Rather in His Brain, Who Well Known Through out this County through which he Traveled.

Lloyd Hiner Harner, widely known throughout Adams and York counties, committed suicide Saturday morning at his home in Hanover by firing a bullet into his brain.

The motive for the deed may never be known, as he arose at the usual hour Saturday and prepared to go on the business route of Samuel Shirk and Sons, where he has been employed for the former of years. He complained of a cold and had been troubled with sore spasms, after partaking of his breakfast. His wife remained abroad. Between him to the second floor. Expecting to find him lying on the bed. She was shocked at not seeing him in any of the rooms. It was then she opened the door of the stairway leading to the garret. As she did so, she heard the report of a revolver. She hastened to the garret and found her husband lying on the floor, blood spouting from a wound in the head.

Dr. H. M. Allemong was immediately summoned, who responded promptly. Upon examination found that he had fired from a 38-calibre Harrington and Richardson revolver, which was by his near his side, had penetrated his left ear and lodged in the brain. When Dr. Allemong arrived the heart was beating faintly, but soon thereafter the vital spark fled, and death ensued without his regaining consciousness.

For the past two years he has been employed by Samuel Shirk and Sons, most of his time being occupied as a traveling salesman. By reason of this, he was well known throughout the east York and Adams counties. He was unassuming, and extremely courteous, enjoying the confidence of his employers, and the esteem of the trade in which he faithfully served.

Mr. Harner had been married only a few months, he having married Miss Margaret Alexander having taken place last November. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Urias Harner, of Penrville, one brother, Charles E. Harner, Mrs Irvin Bowers, of Penrville, and a brother, Malcolm Harner, living with his parents.

William Clarence Sheely died at 7 o'clock Saturday evening at his home on Springs avenue after an illness of several months from Bright's disease.

Mr. Sheely had been in ill health for some months and during that time had been failing steadily. He was able however to attend to his duties in his office until last Tuesday when he was compelled to remain at home and had not been able to go to his office since. He grew very much worse the day evening and death followed on Saturday.

Mr. Sheely was born in Gettysburg on Jan. 28, 1863 and was consequently 48 years, 1 month and 19 days old. In his profession he was one of the most able members of the local bar, a man of keen intellect, thorough knowledge of the law, and conscientious attention to the work of his clients. LAWYERS PAY HIGH TRIBUTE

Impressive session the members of the Adams County Bar Association met on Monday afternoon to adopt a memorial to the life of the man whom they recognized as their leader, the chief in the legal profession in this county—W. Clarence Sheely. Every member present delivered a brief but, in many cases, eloquent eulogy. Ex-Judge William McClean, president of the association, presided and in the order of business submitted to the local bar such one of the lawyers arose and paid their tribute.

John L. Hill, Esq., spoke of Mr. Sheely as "a man of the highest honor, unselfishly well prepared in his profession and a man of the utmost faithfulness to opposing and clients."

William Mathiot, Esq., described him as "one of the great lawyers of Pennsylvania" and said that without a doubt he stood at the head of the Adams County bar. "He was distinguished for his ability, his integrity, his prudence and rapidity in work. He was upright, honorable and high minded—the ideal lawyer."

George J. Benner, Esq., spoke of the fact that as many of the most distinguished and successful lawyers of all the Adams County bar had been worked up by Sheely before they had passed the age of 30 and of their confidence resting upon A. Ritmiller, J. Conrad Neely, David Wills, Job E. Krauth, and A. W. Flemming, Jr., and referring to the death of Neely as "one of the prime of life as adding another to the list. "For the past ten or fifteen years," said Mr. Benner, "there has been one of the leaders of the Adams and some requiring respect legal service in which Mr. Sheely was not the leading counsel."

Hon. Jesse McClean, Esq., referred to his close connection with Mr. Sheely during his long association with Charles S. Duncan, Esq., they went through college together, Mr. McClean attended the funeral with Mr. Sheely to his alertness and said that he gave the best years of his life to his service to others.

Mr. McClean closed with "All through his life Mr. Sheely was in the front rank, shirking at no time, he was at the head of the bar of this county and among the leaders of the most prominent lawyers of this state. The bar of Adams county has lost its best member, the community one of its most earnest and loyal friends and its fountain head. His fairness of appearance marked him as a man, a lawyer and a friend."

Edward A. Weaver, Esq., alluded to the fact that Mr. Sheely was known to his family notwithstanding his connection with social matters. He was a devoted husband, a loving father, an affectionate companion and brother and a criterion for every young man who was known to the profession of the law."

Samuel S. Neely, Esq., said in part, "To any one who knew Mr. Sheely it will well be most refreshing to contemplate were his remarkable industry, his thoroughness. I never knew any lawyer here or elsewhere who had these traits to a greater degree. He was found on one more kind, more tender hearted, more loyal friend. It was the little things for those whom he liked that Sheely was not a man to parade his friendship before the world. He gave attention to a statement made by his friends as to the profession of the lawyer which convinced Mr. Sheely for to the speaker a marked paper containing that statement which was the last thing they had under discussion. Mr. Williams alluded to Mr. Sheely's religious faith as a man who was consistent and spotless in character."

J. L. Williams, Esq., spoke of the personal loss he felt in the death of Mr. Sheely, stating that he could it was entertained by every member of the bar. Mr. Williams said that his friend illustrated by the foot that only two days before his death, Sheely came to the speaker a marked paper containing a statement of a lawyer which he said they had under discussion. Mr. Williams alluded to Mr. Sheely's religious faith as a man who was consistent and spotless in character.

Donald F. Sellers, Esq. "Of the more I saw and knew Mr. Sheely the more I admired him for his many traits. His integrity, his fairness and full knowledge of every question in hand made it a pleasure to deal with him. In his death I feel the community has lost a valuable citizen. His clients a trusted advocate and his friends an irreparable loss."

John O. Keith, Esq., as a former student under Mr. Sheely, told of his sterling qualities as a man, of his strong religious belief and of his deep life. "He enjoyed things that were clean and noble only. In all my association with him I never heard him tell a questionable story or use a word of such a nature. His family life was one of the most beautiful I have ever seen. His best as one of his principles 'Fight and fight fair.' He was a man in every sense of the word and he was a gentleman. I can't conceive of the loss of any man to the bar more which would be felt so keenly."

J. Donald Swope, Esq., Mr. Sheely was a great lawyer. I have been proud that I learned law in his office."

Norman S. Heindel, Esq., "Mr. Sheely was a man, honored and revered. The Adams County bar has lost a great lawyer, and Adams County a Gettysburg and Adams County have lost a man and one considerate and a good friend. Truly 'a great man has fallen.'"

Judge McClean, as president, closed the remarks. He said that Mr. Sheely's thorough and personal belief in all things right was the key to his success in life and that it was Mr. Sheely self-closed summarizing on the uncertainty of life. "Mr. Sheely has left the work of something better," he said, "Or a City without Foundations. And the Bar Association is free to exercise an honor our God."

ARE STRANDED IN THE CITY

Report from Philadelphia that Adams County Woman and Family Fail in Effort to Find Husband and Father. Take Dog Along.

A story of an Adams County family stranded in Philadelphia with their faithful dog was printed on Friday in the Philadelphia Record which says:

Mrs Mary Nagy, her two children and their pet dog, Rover, which has highly prized because it saved the life of her little girl, became stranded in this city yesterday. Mrs. Nagy, the children, accompanied, of course, by the dog, came from Heidelsburg, Adams county, Pa., and according to arrangements were to meet Daniel Nagy, the husband. The women and children and dog waited at Broad Street Station until so late on yesterday afternoon when she told her story, and she, the children and Rover were taken to the City Hall, where Mrs. Nagy was questioned by Detective Joseph Shay. She said that her husband, who is a moulder, had come to Philadelphia a week ago and obtained employment. He had sent for her and the children and told them to become and bring Rover along. Mrs. Nagy relished the latter, for she remembered that he had mentioned Rover's name in his letters. This neighborhood was searched but on one of the streets of Nagy could be found.

Mr. Shay obtained for the present a home for Mrs. Nagy and her children, but the dog was not. The woman then declared that she would not part with Rover, and after some time another person was discovered by the detective who, determined to take good care of the dog until the husband was found and the family reunited, settled in a new home. When Rover was being taken from the reception room of the Detective Bureau by the man who had agreed to keep him Mrs. Nagy broke down and cried bitterly, for it also the child whom he had saved. At first Rover refused to go, but Mrs. Nagy told him to go and he went.

Mrs. Nagy's two children were drowned in the river a few years eight months old. The woman, between sobs, declared that it was only at how Rover had saved Irene's life. When Irene fell into the river Rover, who was wandered from the doorway on which she was playing and fell into a stream which run near the house. Rover dashed into the stream and, gripping her clothes in his mouth, dragged her out of the water.

Inquiry at Heidlersburg and visits to Adams county furnished any knowledge of the Nagy family.

MUST NOT SELL YOUNG RABBITS

Feliz Feller, Local Representative of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, to Protect Chicks also.

Feliz Feller, local representative of the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, stated this morning that he intends to enforce rigidly the law prohibiting the sale of little chicks and rabbits to which keepers during the coming Easter season. The society has already announced the arrest of numerous dealers in other towns and cities for this offense.

Business men who have been in the habit of offering for sale little chickens and rabbits, as well as other small animals, or displaying them in show windows will be warned against such practice and Mr. Feller will be on the lookout to see that the warning is heeded. Even in animals or poultry are accepted, as their business fits them for but if you can't sell 'em, you can't sell rabbits, the law contends. The exposure of them for sale is a misdemeanor to the society, is cruelty unless they are properly cared for and the sale of chicks or rabbits.

Many of the results of selling the young chickens or rabbit, it is said, is the fact that they are given as prizes by plaything of children and are treated carelessly and soon die from neglect.

H. J. Taylor, formerly mailer of the Bendersville National Bank, now connected with the United States Internal Revenue Office at Lancaster, was a Gettysburg visitor on Thursday.

Mrs. Mattie Miller and daughter, Bertha, have moved to their new home in Mount Joy. Iowa, after spending sometime with the former's sister, Mrs. Ida Hoffman.

HAVE OFF, PLEASE!

Mrs. Grouch—I wish you'd get off my foot. Her hair has been long dead. Mrs. Snobbish—Why, I'm sorry. Mrs. Grouch—Oh, that's all right. Mrs. Snobbish—Then please. Of course it isn't. Mrs. Grouch—Oh with your hair to the off. Kobe Sun. With the big bright yellow sun.

She don't trained to show her curves Before a parlor grate; She don't sit on the stairs to show Her pretty ankles off; She don't dance on tall Poles, But if you could see her Shall continue dainty shoes She don't wear 'em out. Kansas City Star.

She don't stand on even toes Before a parlor grate; She don't humming round at shows, But if you could see her Shall continue dainty shoes She don't wear 'em out. And if you're after belly free Shall continue dainty shoes She don't wear 'em out. Kansas City Star. The best men in the town.

A KIND CRITIC'S COMMENT.

A preacher was pulled off lectures, and the chairman of the Lit. Leg. gave his reason in a note in the Saturday Evening Post. "Dear Sir," he wrote, "owing to reasons, stated hereon, don't you know any better than to bring a good lecture to this town on Saturday?"

Then she and the farmers will be bad it.

It was simply thoughtlessness or want of an extra hen. She took her basket of eggs to the store for sale and often kept thus produce back when they don't mind their p's and q's.

Mrs. Grouch—I wonder what a taste of ducks and turkeys. The ducks set on the floor of the cars, the turkeys standing over them.

Well, you can imagine how clean and nice those white ducks were after a ride like the big bright yellow sun.

It is low in many states that fowls with full crops must not be sold in market.

Anyone quickly balk at buying birds stuffed with corn. When they see chickens in the coops and crates they suspect a pat up job, and when they see them in a filthy coop they litt their noses high and pass by.

Many farmers will not go out very nice to put into a clean market basket and then they wonder why they get less from market.

Of course, we are particular about eggs. It used to be said "Eggs are just eggs," but that is not the case in these days. They not only must be clean fresh, but they must be infertile, or else they will spoil quickly, and eggs must not be set by feeding pure stuffs, having clean nests and keeping them in dark and cool rooms. Venders and producers of foodstuffs will have to do with the health of the people and should so not in these matters as to promote the common good.

FEATHERS AND GOOSEBILLS.

The latter word is used in a slang sense. They are mere suggestion to cold and avoid special food to matter them. If exposed to the weather they are scarcely free to eggs and, if not sensible, start an animation, and if not, they are not worth the price we pay for them.

FEATHERS AND GOOSEBILLS.

The latter word is used in a slang sense. They are mere suggestion to use the past season. In 1910 3,224,000 cases of eggs were shipped to New York, an excess of 1,011,000 cases over 1909. The average cost the consumer for these 3 extra more per dozen than last season.

Eggs are not infertile when they are made rush in a few years because it is the highest time ever received, as we did. Most of it is now galvanized buckets, however, the tin coating cracks the coating, and rust finishes it in a few years. Galvanized iron is perfect rusting very tightly only bastens decay.

In 1908 thirty dozen of eggs would buy one ordinary work, with three and one brownie carrot for her parlor, but the same dozen eggs in 1910 bought but six yards. According to the estimate of the agricultural experts, in the spring of five ordinary farm hens.

It does not pay to operate Leghorn carcasses, for, though they increase hens in weight, it is not in time to reach the weight required for which Rocks, Wyandottes and Brahmas are has ton. On the big Leghorn plants they are sold as soon as broilers and pay for their feed.

We remind our readers who have a good flock and are on point of changing to the poultry business that to live in the country is to live in the houses in the town." Go slow till you have learned the ropes and then jog you into a healthier existence.
